This was my first time taking the workshop and upon completion ~~I am already hungry for more!~~ I can't wait to try some new techniques in the classroom. This workshop couldn't have come @ a better time in both my personal AND professional life. I am a first year teacher and was struggling to keep my head above water. After this weekend I feel re-energized and completely competent and validated in my craft. 😊 Thank you for being REAL!

This is so frequently lost in our society. I feel empowered to be REAL myself!! I LOVE YOU!! ✓

Current psychology proves that being thankful actually, physically makes the brain grow. And focusing on the positive causes a better balance of chemicals and frontal lobe activation.

I use many of the strategies that come so naturally to me in the way I relate to students. It is nice to be validated and given more ways to expand on the ideas. I LOVE the idea to not be afraid to live by your code.

Great letter....from Fantastic Gary Montgomery to Denny!

Hi Denny,

I want to thank you again for allowing me to participate in your high energy and High Trust workshop. I thoroughly enjoyed Thursday and Friday night . I have read all the evaluations from Joe over the last couple of years and always thought about attending.

From your workshop I learned that a lot of what I have done in the classroom and teach to beginning teachers has been confirmed,..... but I also learned some new skills too.

- Just in the two days I heard, neutralizing arguing, the use of “encouragement” vs. “praise” and rewards
- ask lots of questions
- what you model you teach (what you permit you teach),
- focus on the positive etc.

I have even used your words to clarify mine (with full credit to your High Trust workshops). Sometimes too many teacher focus on the forest and don't even get to the part of comparing the trees.

My special take a-ways were:

1st...no one respects anyone they can insult or begs ( a gem for beginning teachers). I found myself just this year trying to explain that to a beginning teacher.

2nd...Too many want love rather than respect and only honest and mutual love can come through respect.

3rd...My other take away had to do with controllers and ARFF.

4th...Live your code and some won't like you; compromise your code and you end up not likening yourself...(why I left teaching early and came back late...to live my code of teaching.

Bottom-line what I heard you say over and over is, “It is really about relationships.” Teaching is truly done best as a performing art as you describe it. One of my first interviews for a high school social studies teaching and coaching position, I told the interviewer that I likened teacher to acting and performing for students, and the way they poked around that question, I feel sure that one lost me the job offer (their loss).

I would have loved to sit down with you over a “drink”, Pepsi for me please and no judgment on what you might want as a refreshment. ☺

Take care and I wish you continued success.

Gary Montgomery

Emails that just came in.....

Denny,.....I first of all want to thank you for your support and teaching me how to be the most successful teacher I can be, and how I should respect myself.

Second I respect you so much and cherish who you are.

Denny,

I would love to share a success!!

I am working in a well known class today and I knew I needed to be the perfect performer! I was on the moment the bell ring! They were I was making them give me such weird looks and I LOVED IT!!!! From that moment I knew I had their attention!! They have been following me wherever I go seeing what I am going to do next. I know I couldn't have done this without your teaching thi weekend!!!! Thank you so much!!!!!!

G.
